

Christmas 2022

Happy New Year from the Philsons. Many of you called to thank me for not sending out this letter only to learn that it was pending...I'm sorry! The delay in getting our annual Christmas letter out was due to illness as I've been sick most of December. I was helping Bubbles (our Chimpanzee we adopted from good friend Michael Jackson) with his homework. We homeschool Bubbles with all that is going on in the public schools these days. We are afraid he may "transition" and we are not sure what that might entail...Would he become a Gorilla, a female chimp or a circus sideshow attraction. I don't want to find out.

Anyway, when he's frustrated, he bites (ask Maggie about her discount at all nail salons). Anyway, he bit me and "Yes, I contracted Monkey Pox". Dr. Fauci said it may have started in a wet market in Ape City or when Taylor kissed Zira on the beach near the Forbidden Zone. Who knows?

When we last communicated, we had all retained jobs within the Biden-Harris administration. We thought we were in rarified air being here in D.C. in the Biden Whitehouse, but it appears they go through staffers faster than green grass goes through a goose. None of us felt safe, but the upcoming Mid-Terms were helping us keep our jobs.

Georgia's official position was Secretary of Assisted Living. She basically was a full-time nanny to the President. She taught him to ride a bike, read a teleprompter, get on and off a stage and to go number 2 in the potty like a big boy. Having not been successful at any of these objectives provided to her by Jill Biden, Georgia was let go from her position. Free from Joe's hair-sniffing, stories about Corn Pop and his inability to poop in the toilet, Georgia became a "free agent" for the right price.

With Georgia unemployed, it was important that I retained my position as Director of White Supremacy Diversity as long as possible. As I had stated in last year's letter, I was indifferent about this position. Even with Joe Biden's reassurances, I felt compelled to ask for an assignment elsewhere. Sarah, Daniel's girlfriend, mentioned that I should get involved with the economy. Inflation was at an all-time high and anything I did would only make me look good.

With her advice, I requested a position with the U.S. Department of Commerce. Just like that I was free of my Justice position and in a position to straighten out the mess of inflation. I was given a new position, the Chairman of Regulatory Appropriations and Policy (CRAP). The position was a liaison for the administration between the Federal Reserve, the Federal Trade Commission, U.S. Treasury and U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission. I would need help with this position due to my inability to balance a checkbook. Sarah, with her finance background would be that person.

Meanwhile, Daniel, Maggie and Skyla were done infiltrating the Republican events and getting intel on the activities at the mid-term related events. They were very successful with their intel providing just enough information to stop the anticipated “Red Wave”. The key was handing out thousands and thousands of Chinese Finger Trap gifts to the rally attendees. The toys were so effective that most people were unable to vote as fingers from each hand were locked up. That was not our kid’s idea, but Hunter Biden’s. He had Chinese novelty connections and at $100 a-piece, he purchased 1,000,000 items to distribute in key, battleground states.

Daniel hooked up with a new friend he made at a Democratic fund raiser. The guy, Sam Bankman-Fried, was into crypto and saving the world. Daniel thought Crypto was a street gang having been raised in the mean streets of Broken Arrow, OK. This was not the case. Sam, Daniel’s friend, was quite the character. He owned his own Crypto Trading Platform, FTX. He makes money on other peoples trades of imaginary currency like Pokémon trading cards or Beany Babies.

They bonded and Daniel started working there soon after. Short on cash, Daniel asked if he could get an advance on his salary. Sam cut him a check for $100,000,000.00. Daniel thought it was excessive, but only planned on buying a new suit. The next day, another $100 million check went into his account, and this kept happening repeatedly. Daniel finally got someone from payroll to stop the checks after $8 billion had been deposited. Daniel doesn’t regret it now but if he must pay that advance back, he’ll be working at FTX for years. I would never want to be trapped in a job for that long.

Meanwhile, FTX had caught my attention (Sarah’s really). On my orders, a coordinated investigative effort by the FBI began. My real concern was that I didn’t understand what Cryptocurrency was and if I should invest. Yes! I use the power of my position instead of Google! I once started an investigation of the Pizza Industry just to find the nearest Domino’s. I figured nothing would come of my investigation but, boy...What a mistake!

As a result of the investigation Sam, Daniel’s boss, and other executives were arrested. Well, as luck would have it, this past month, FTX went bankrupt, and Daniel was let go without even a severance package! I guess I was wrong about that long term job of Daniel’s, but he seems to be doing alright.

Whitney and Cory were still on the Kamala Harris staff. One of the main duties of the VP is to attend state funerals of big wigs, celebrities and political foes. This was a problem with Kamala's history of laughing uncontrollably. You can hide the cackle in a crowd and even at a speech, but during a funeral, this was unacceptable to even this administration. Whitney and Cory were assigned to represent the United States of America during key funeral events during 2022. The VP did attend a few funerals (Ken Starr, Ivana Trump, Orrin Hatch). These were all funerals where the administration wanted Kamala to attend for some reason.

Whitney and Cory hobnobbed with an international group of funeral attendees. They attended the following funerals: Queen Elizabeth II, Mikhail Gorbachev, Madeleine Albright and Shinzo Abe (former Prime Minister of Japan). They were also able to sneak into a few celebrity funerals such as Meatloaf, Tony Dow and Pope Benedict XVI. Whitney and Cory are really immersed in the daily gossip surrounding Vatican City. Cory has a blog and website called "Pope Culture" with action photos of all the Popes. Whitney has a treatment peaking real interest for a TV pilot called "The Real Popes of Vatican City". She really thinks Bravo and MTV are interested, so cross your fingers for her.

Maggie, Skyla and Georgia are still waiting for the right opportunity. The only paycheck either has received was for appearing before the January 6th Committee to testify against Daniel and me. Apparently, our short time at the Capital was the worst thing since the Civil War. I saw that Avenger's movie and I didn't think it was that bad.

As I was now a member of the administration, the committee did not want to pursue me, but Daniel was a different story. He was in most of the photos shirtless and with that helmet I bought him...he kind of stuck out. Sadly, most of the photos were taken by me. The day before his trial was to start, he got that job at FTX. Suddenly, the commission was not interested, and the case was dropped. Thank you Sam Bankman-Fried.

At the time of this letter, it is a brand-new year, and we look forward to finding employment for Georgia, Maggie, Daniel and Skyla. Daniel saved up enough money to help the others out. Sarah and Daniel have hired Georgia as a fulltime Nanny for Luca. Georgia is loving this job the most of all her past ventures. It pays well too!

We hope everyone had a Merry Christmas and will have a Happy New Year.
